Machine-locked License Installation Instructions

Machine-locked licenses:

- are typically used for evaluations of Schrödinger software
- are tied to one computer and cannot be used on any other computer
- must be installed on the machine where you intend to use the software

If you have not already done so, download the Schrödinger software here. You will need to be logged into your Schrödinger web account (if you do not already have one, please request one here).

Windows | Mac | Linux

Use the license key (quickest)

Upon purchasing Schrödinger software, you will receive an email from Schrödinger with your license key highlighted. You will need this to install your license entitlement file.

Using Configure Schrödinger Licenses app

NOTE: You can only install a local entitlement file if you have the permissions to write to one of the following directories:

C:\ProgramData\Schrodinger\licenses

Installation specific

C:\Program Files\Schrodinger2026-4\licenses

- When installing Schrödinger software for the first time, the installation guide will finish with an option to open the Configure Schrödinger Licenses app to install your license.
- Or, if you choose to install the license at a later time, in the Maestro main window, choose Help → Configure Schrodinger Licensing.
- Or, open the app directly from the folder of the Schrödinger software installation: Go to Windows → Start → All apps → Schrodinger release → Configure Software

If you have previously installed licenses, they will appear in the Manage Licenses section.

Select the Local Entitlements tab

In the Add Licenses section (below Access Licenses section)

- In the Add License section, Start with Key Text should be selected by default
- In the text box, paste the license key from your email
- Click Install License
- You will see the Source Path, Start Date, Expiry Date, and Machine ID in the Manage Licenses section

or, download and install the license file

or install using the command line

Open Schrödinger Command prompt

licadmin install -k <key>

Check that licenses are accessible:

```
lictest -d MAESTRO_MAIN

This should report the available licenses and their current usage.
